

Sounds Of Singchronicity - May 09

Thank you all for the many gifts you bring to share

Each month I take some time to decide what to write about for the new newsletter...what has happened, what is happening next and what gems can I share? Normally I have so much come to mind that I have trouble deciding what to leave out! This month, I could sum it up in one single word...gratitude. As I look back over the month and think of the people I have come into contact with (in person) and the multitude of messages received in my inboxes and the things I've learned, I realise how much I have to be truly grateful for.

Special People

All people are special, but what I have noticed is how the people in my life are so special. I have a loving family who tirelessly support me in everything I do and friends who love to share their love and their special talents. For this I am truly grateful.

Special Talents

The people I have in my life have a vast array of special talents. From musicians to spiritual art teachers and healers, they share their gifts and joy unconditionally. Where I can, I feature their offerings in this newsletter, whenever they are consistent with a musical and or spiritual development framework. I can assure you that when you attend any of the events overleaf and you will meet some very special people!

Passion

I am blessed to be surrounded by people who are passionate about what they do. This is so energising for me and for everyone they come into contact with. Being exposed to their passion lights up my day so I can shine even brighter for those I come into contact with. Thank you all!

Generosity

These people love to share. They share their knowledge, their talents their energy and their love without expectation of return. (I'm getting goey just thinking about it!) So when you go to one of their events, be open and willing to receive and to be truly thankful for the wonderful gifts they impart.

Unconditional

Love

Recently I had a life-changing lesson on what it means to really love. I discovered that I was able to unconditionally love a person whom I had never met before! This was a new and liberating experience for me that led to the birth of another new song "Unconditional Love". Ask me about it next time we meet & I will share it with you.

Notice Gratitude

I have some friends who are so grateful for what they have in their lives, with each other and with their beautiful son. They constantly express this and it serves as an ongoing reminder to me to take the time to express gratitude more.

Express Gratitude

Metaphysically it appears like the outward expression of gratitude creates a vacuum that allows joy to rush in to fill the void! Not that this should be the reason for being grateful and expressing it, but it is a beautiful byproduct that provides positive reinforcement that we are in a good space when we express gratitude.

So thank you all for your love, your positive energy and your beautiful sharing of your talents. Thank you, thank you, thank you!

Coming Events

John Will Be Appearing At The Following Events

Drumming Circle at the Northey Street Organic Markets

Sundays May 17 & 31 from 7.30AM to 10.30AM

Northey Street Organic Markets, Cnr Northey Street & Victoria Street Windsor.

Stage area through market stalls, past the Chai Cafe.

In the spirit of being truly organic, we are trying to get a drumming circle up and running. This is a new venture that I am going to trial with the people who organise the weekly organic market. The market has a real earthy feel to it, with plenty of room to sit down, have a drink, with something to eat and a chat. Quite a few buskers are spread through the market as well, adding to the festival-like atmosphere.

So come along and say hi! Bring your drums, percussion instruments plus a sense of play and adventure....There are no entry fees. You can read more about the market at <http://www.northeastcityfarm.org.au/marketandcafe.htm> See you there!

Male Voices Book – Stories of boys learning through making music

Edited by Scott D. Harrison

Publisher: ACER Press, 2008 Released: 2009

These stories are about people, relationships and risk takers. Gripping yarns and tall tales that focus on what makes a difference in the lives of Australian men and their music making -- and the policies and structures needed to make it all happen.
